

MARY'S SONG

1 I look to the hillside, the skies have turned grey,
This place is deserted where love was betrayed.
The life you gave freely was taken from me today.

2 I see it so clearly, the look on your face,
The sadness and sorrow, the pain you embraced,
And now it's all over a silence enfolds the day.

CHORUS

*Tell me why did it have to be done,
When my feelings of love are so strong?
Could it be there's a reason
For taking the life of my son?*

3 The noises still echo around in my head,
The shouts and the jeering, the crowds as they fled,
But now it's all over and I'm on my own again.

4 I gratefully bore you, I watched as you grew,
I listened and wondered at all that you knew,
But this is the hardest of all that I've learned from you.
